Event Summary:

A two-day skill development program on ICT tools successfully conducted by the Economics Department, Daulat Ram College, for 1st-year students from 13th September to 14th September 2024, aimed at providing foundational digital literacy skills crucial for academic success and future career development. The program covered essential tools such as Google Classroom, Google Sites, Google Forms, MS Word, MS PowerPoint, and MS Excel. The objective was to ensure students are proficient in using these tools for effective learning, communication, and collaboration.

Day 1 - Session 1

The first session of the program, conducted by Ms. Devangana Jha, introduced students to Google Classroom, a powerful learning management system. The session focused on familiarizing students with how to enroll in courses, submit assignments, and communicate with instructors using this platform. Students were given a step-by-step demonstration on how to navigate the interface, track deadlines, and engage with course materials. The practical hands-on approach allowed students to create and organize their own classroom environments, simulating the actual course management process. Next, students were introduced to Google Sites, a tool for website creation. The session was designed to teach students how to build personal portfolios, project websites, or resource-sharing platforms. In the end of the session Google Forms was covered. Students were guided on how to create forms, design quizzes with various question types, and collect feedback efficiently.

Day 1 - Session 2

The second session of the day was conducted by Dr R. Ahalya on MS Word, where students learned how to create well-structured documents. Various formatting tools such as alignment, fonts, superscript, subscript, paragraph spacing, spelling and grammar check were covered. Hands-on training was given to the students using templates, and incorporating images and tables. The mail-merge function was also introduced to the students.

Day 2 - Session 1

The first session of the second day on MS PowerPoint, conducted by Ms. Akanksha, provided students with the skills to create dynamic presentations. Students learned, with hands-on session, how to use slide layouts, integrate multimedia elements, and apply animations and transitions. The session aimed to enhance their ability to present ideas clearly and engagingly, a skill vital for academic presentations, group projects, and future professional work.

Day 2 - Session 2

The final session of the program, conducted by Ms. Aakriti Saini, was dedicated to MS Excel, focusing on both basic and advanced functions. Students, with hands-on training, learned how to input data, organize it into tables, and perform calculations using formulas and functions. They were also introduced to charts, graphs, and pivot tables, allowing them to visualize data for better interpretation. These skills are essential for analyzing research data, tracking academic progress, and managing personal finances.

At the end of the program, feedback was collected through Google Forms. The responses were overwhelmingly positive, with students appreciating the hands-on approach and practical applications of the tools.

Is there any manual available for this SDP Session for future references?

This workshop was highly useful as we gained skills which are required in the practical world and enhanced our soft skills as well, eventually making us tech savvy.

I think workshops should be practical also instead of online as students can not work continuously on their laptops and phones and also to increase knowledge with fun element skills should be taught practically also.

the workshop was very informative and helpful.

Very helpful session

I felt that the workshop was less interactive

The teachers were very helpful and cleared all the doubts and questions asked during the sessions.
